P. Virgili Maronis Opera : Or, the Works of Virgil.

By JOHN STIRLING, M. A.

Vicar of Great Gaddesden in Hertfordshire, and Chaplain to his Grace the Duke of Gordon.

In this Edition of Virgil, Care has been taken to make the Text very correct ; in the Ordo Verborum, Elleipses have been supplied, and Words of an easy restrained Sense have been substituted, instead of those of difficult and uncertain Signification. An Historical and Geographical Index, drawn from the Author, and the best Commentators upon him, follows the Text ; in which those Circumstances and

Actions

BOOKS printed for THO. ASTLEY. II

Actions only are mention'd which are to be met with in Virgil. Herein the Propriety of many Epithets, seemingly improper to the Subject, is pointed out, and the present Names of Places carefully remark'd. To this is subjoin'd a Collection of Phrases, Periphrases, and proverbial Expressions; whence great Light is thrown upon the most difficult Passages. By these Helps a Person, who has made but a small Proficiency in the Knowledge of the Latin Tongue, may become Master of this Author without any foreign Assistance. 8vo. price 6 s. bound.

Also lately published by the same Author,

The following is an Extract from the Present State of the REPUBLICK of LETTERS for the Month of July, 1734.

The usual Method, practised in our Schools, is certainly very tedious, and a Hardship both to the Master and Scholar. But the Dominion of Custom is so firmly established, that an Attempt to shake off the Yoke is looked on as a Sort of Rebellion; and the Person who is generous enough to offer us our Liberty, is treated as a Disturber of the publick Peace. This Consideration has prevailed with Men of great Learning and Integrity to comply with what they found established, even against their own Judgment.

Mr. STIRLING, Master of St. Andrew's School, is one of those courageous Men, who dare go out of the common Road, with a View of reaching the End of their Journey sooner, and conducting others thither, with more Ease and Security. He has lately published an Edition of Phædrus's Fables, with considerable Improvements, and in a Method entirely new.

In order to facilitate the Construction, he has placed the Words of the Author, after each Fable, in their natural and Grammatical Order, and supplied such as by an Ellipsis were omitted, and yet were necessary for making the Syntax compleat. These are distinguished by an Italick Character. He has added an Alphabetical Vocabulary, containing all the Words used in the Book, with their Signification in English, their Class in the Parts of Speeck, and the Accidents of variable Words; and the Themes and Government of Verbs. In the Ordo Verborum and Vocabulary, all Words consisting of more than two Syllables are marked with an Accent, directing the Pronunciation; and the Rhetorical Figures are marked and specified below each Fable. So that all the four Parts of Grammar, necessary for understanding this Author, are reduced to a narrow Compas, and brought down to the Capacity of the youngest Scholar; and the Time usually employed in turning over a Dictionary is spared.

To these Improvements, Mr. STIRLING has added a free Translation of all Phædrus's Mottos, and a Collection of Idioms and Phrases with a correspondent English.
